guest advisory council

On a recent Friday afternoon, emergency shelter guests, supportive housing residents, and staff gathered at People Serving People to discuss concerns and brainstorm ideas about safe infant bathing options, dress code policies, and opportunities for teens.

These are just some of the topics the Guest Advisory Council (GAC) addresses to make People Serving People a better place in which children and families in crisis can safely transition to stability.

The GAC was formed in March 2017 during our process to become a trauma responsive organization. The organizational self-assessment we conducted highlighted the need to offer more opportunities for guests to provide advice and feedback on matters impacting their experience here. The GAC has helped us sustain and evaluate our ongoing efforts to be trauma responsive.

In the early GAC meetings, the group created a participation agreement for staff and guests who join the council. The agreement outlines that anyone is eligible to attend and all feedback—whether positive or constructive—is welcome. Participants agree to respect each other’s viewpoints, ideas, and feedback; maintain confidentiality; and volunteer at “Adopt-a-Block” clean-up days.

The GAC now meets every other Friday. Council members establish the biweekly agenda and are encouraged to bring new business and invite additional members to each meeting.

While the attendance at GAC meetings varies due to schedule conflicts and our highly mobile shelter population, each participant has expressed an appreciation for this new avenue to get involved.

“I wanted my voice to be heard...to share my thoughts and concerns,” said Daniell, a shelter guest.

As supportive housing resident Ali’Cia put it, “I love that it’s an actual community where I feel like I belong. Diversity actually stands for something. I do it because I’m being heard. I see major changes at People Serving People.”

In the short time that the GAC has existed, they have helped drive changes throughout People Serving People.

“I love that it’s an actual community where I feel like I belong. Diversity actually stands for something. I do it because I’m being heard.”

“The GAC now sees policies and procedures when they are being considered and is asked for input. It’s created a level playing field, one that’s empowering and inclusive, and allows our guests to help drive and shape what we do,” said Noah Gerding, People Serving People employee and GAC member.

The GAC has identified hidden needs among our shelter guests and supportive housing residents.

strategic plan update

In 2016, People Serving People began to implement a new three-year strategic plan and new mission: “People Serving People helps homeless and at-risk children and their families manage crisis situations and build a strong foundation for their long-term success.”

As the final year of the plan wraps up, we look back on the ways People Serving People has grown.

The strategic plan was guided by two questions: What creates the greatest stability for children while they’re with us? What creates the greatest stability for children in the community?

These questions led us to expand our work beyond and within the shelter walls.

Internally, we undertook an organization-wide initiative to incorporate trauma informed care into our policies and procedures. This staff-driven initiative has helped us better serve our guests. Viewing our work through a trauma informed lens gives us a better understanding of how trauma shapes our guests’ experiences and behavior. We have made changes to our policies, physical environment, volunteer onboarding, messaging and communications, and operations to reduce inadvertently re-traumatizing guests. Trauma responsive policies have also helped us better support our staff who experience vicarious trauma through their work. Staff are attending relevant trainings, creating self-care plans, and being encouraged to “step away” after a stressful experience.

The Guest Advisory Council, formed out of our trauma informed care initiative, continues to help shape and guide our policies, service delivery, and operations. Being trauma informed is an ongoing process. A sustainment plan is in place to continue this work and build on our progress in the coming years.

Many of our shelter guests struggle with mental health and chemical health. We hired an Advocacy Services Coordinator in 2016 to focus on mental health and addiction services. She leads Life Skills and Mental Health groups that cover topics such as anxiety, addiction, and anger management. These groups educate guests on the effects of trauma, mental health, and addiction on physical health; teach skills needed for healthy and positive family lives; and connect families to resources to provide longer-term assistance.

Externally, we expanded our work upstream of the shelter system with the opening in 2017 of the Center of Excellence Preschool and Learning Center. Our nature-based, licensed child care center has a Four Star Parent Aware rating and is designated a Strong Beginnings site by Hennepin County. It serves up to 52 children, ages 6 weeks-12 years old.

We have also grown our systems change work. In 2017, we established and hired a Director of Systems Change and Community Engagement to lead systems change initiatives throughout the organization. This expanded our scope to address some of the overarching policy challenges impacting our service population. We have worked to improve the field of trauma informed care and family resiliency by hosting community gatherings and educational trainings. Additionally, our guests and staff have become more involved in advocacy and public policy discussions at the state and local level.

Throughout all of this work, we continue our robust community partnership program, collaborating with 46 partners to increase the services offered to our shelter guests and Center of Excellence families.

In the coming months, we’ll share with you how People Serving People is building on these successes and moving forward with our 2018-2021 strategic plan. Stay tuned!

People with low income and those experiencing homelessness often face significant barriers to voting (access to the polls, proper identification to register to vote, frequent address changes, etc.). As a result, turnout is often low for these populations and their voices are left underrepresented.

People Serving People is working to answer these questions, clear up common misconceptions, and empower everyone to get out and vote in 2018.

As a supporter of People Serving People, we also hope you will amplify the voice of our families and exercise your own right to vote this November, because your vote does matter.

This fall, People Serving People is building awareness and excitement for Election Day through a variety of nonpartisan voter education and voter registration events.

A cross-departmental team of staff are partnering with guests of People Serving People to educate staff and guests on the upcoming election, register as many people as possible to vote, and mobilize our population for voting on Election Day.

In Minnesota, voters can register ahead of time or at their polling place on Election Day. Adults experiencing homelessness can vote using the place where they are currently sleeping as their current residence. A registered voter from that precinct or a staff person from a shelter can accompany them to the polling place to confirm residency. For many years, People Serving People’s staff have accompanied shelter guests who are interested in voting to our neighborhood polling place and verified their residency.

“It’s inspiring to accompany someone to the polls who’s never voted before. They feel empowered. People Serving People is building on the Get Out The Vote activities of previous years to register and mobilize more voters than ever this election,” said Jennifer Swick, Community Engagement Manager.

Our commitment to promoting voter education and voting extends beyond our organizational walls to the community at-large. We were proud to support candidate education opportunities like the MinneMinds Gubernatorial Questionnaire and the Homes For All Gubernatorial Candidate Forum on September 12th. These are great opportunities to learn the candidates’ positions on many facets of policy and their visions for Minnesota.

“One of the things I heard from guests at the National Night Out voter registration drive was ‘My vote doesn’t matter.’ It hurts me to hear that, especially when we know that elected officials pay attention to people that vote,” said Rinal Ray, Director of Systems Change and Community Engagement. “As a supporter of People Serving People, we also hope you will amplify the voice of our families and exercise your own right to vote this November, because your vote does matter.”

systems change: get out the vote

“How do I know if I’m registered or not?” “I’ve never done it before.” “I don’t think I’m eligible.” “Where do I go to vote?”

Have you ever heard someone say this? Or have you said it yourself?

Voting is an important civic duty, and People Serving People is working to answer these questions, clear up common misconceptions, and empower everyone to get out and vote in 2018.

Dietary and allergy concerns raised by GAC members led us to update the electronic screens in the dining hall to include up-to-date menus and allergy information. We also worked with the GAC to expand the list of healthy food options guests can keep in their rooms. The laundry process has become more equitable, accessible with additional hours, and easier for staff to oversee thanks to feedback from the GAC.

GAC members have also shared their stories and experiences in the community. The Minnesota Coalition for the Homeless led a “self-advocacy” training for GAC members. They used their voices to share their stories at Homeless Day on the Hill and other advocacy events.

GAC members have also sought out opportunities to get more involved in creating a sense of community within People Serving People. They have helped plan and lead Family Friday Fun night activities, including a graduation-themed event in June and back-to-school event in August. As the GAC members have described it, these events are “for us, by us.” The GAC has also taken on the responsibility of the flower planters in front of the building and other beautification efforts.

Over the course of its tenure, the GAC has become a valued resource for People Serving People staff to learn from and alongside our guests and residents. It’s safe to say the feeling is mutual.

As Ali’Cia said, “Seeing that those who are employed here care enough to have something like this for people staying here—how can we not be appreciative?”

Volunteer at the Center of Excellence

Rocks babies, reading stories, helping with snack time—these are some of the ways volunteers are helping at our newest volunteer opportunity. This fall we launched the volunteer program at the Center of Excellence Preschool and Learning Center.

“The teachers at the Center of Excellence are excited to begin welcoming volunteers and have extra hands and support in their busy classrooms,” said Mallory Evans, Volunteer and Events Manager. “This is a great opportunity for anyone looking to engage with kids and see an impact over the course of several months.”

The Center of Excellence Preschool and Learning Center has five classrooms, serving children ages six weeks-five years old. The after school program reaches children up to 12 years old. Volunteers provide additional assistance to classroom teachers, supporting children’s education and healthy development.

Volunteers can easily sign up for an orientation and training session at the Center of Excellence’s new website: www.centerofexcellencepreschool.org.

Shifts are available from 9:00 am-1:00 pm in each of the five early education classrooms and 2:30–6:00 pm with the school age youth. These opportunities are open to individuals 18+ who pass a background check and agree to a three month commitment to a weekly volunteer shift.

The Center of Excellence is People Serving People’s external initiative in the Phillips neighborhood of Minneapolis. It is located in the Lutheran Social Service Center for Changing Lives at 2400 Park Avenue South, with free parking available in the adjoining lot.

Volunteers are critical to our mission. In 2017, more than 6,500 volunteers provided over 32,000 hours of service to People Serving People. Join us as we grow, and make a difference in the lives of children in our community!

Questions about this new volunteer opportunity? Contact Tom Golembek at tgolembek@peopleservingpeople.org or 612.277.0216.
All our programs are funded by generous donors such as yourself.
